Want to join the Healthcare Quarterly Review Team?

The editors at Healthcare Quarterly would like to hear from individuals interested in joining the journal’s review team. The role of the review team is to provide guidance and advice that ensures the journal maintains its high publishing standards. The primary responsibility of review editors is to read and evaluate manuscripts submitted to the journal, providing feedback on strengths and weaknesses and potential value to readers. Review editors may also participate in editorial planning sessions and annual reviews.

Selection criteria include:

- Multidisciplinary health background (e.g., experience working in several healthcare settings).
- Time available for reviewing in a timely manner (typically, three weeks to complete an assessment).
- Familiarity with the journal and its target audience/readership.
- Critical thinking skills.
- Basic understanding of data interpretation.

Why Join?

There are great benefits to becoming a review editor. For example, you can:

- establish your expertise in the field and expand your knowledge;
- stay up-to-date with the latest literature;
- further develop critical thinking skills;
- build your network in health services across Canada; and
- have electronic access to Longwoods.com for the duration of your term.
