Welcoming Our New Editors

Back in 2013, G. Ross Baker of the Institute for Health Policy, Management and Evaluation (IHPME) at the University of Toronto assumed the role editor-in-chief for Healthcare Quarterly – taking over from the late Dr. Peggy Leatt. Ross did a wonderful job guiding us through many changes, challenges and triumphs in the Canadian healthcare system, Longwoods and the healthcare community. We thank Ross for his wisdom and guidance. This issue marks an important change for Healthcare Quarterly. I am pleased to welcome our new co-editors-in-chief, Dr. Anne Wojtak and Neil Stuart.

Anne Wojtak brings more than 20 years of senior healthcare leadership experience in home and community care and system strategy and is also an adjunct professor at the Dalla Lana School of Public Health at the University of Toronto.

Neil Stuart spent many years as the Canadian practice lead and partner at Price Waterhouse/ PricewaterhouseCoopers, then IBM. Since retiring, Neil continues to be engaged with the healthcare community, serving on many health and healthcare boards.

I look forward to seeing their updated (if they haven't done so already) LinkedIn profiles. Longwoods has had the pleasure of working with both Anne and Neil for a number of years in a range of areas, including creating content, designing events and collaborating for the betterment of our healthcare system.

What roads will they venture down as the editors-in-chief of Healthcare Quarterly? Can't wait to find out!
